Charlotte Clymer

Charlotte Clymer is a writer, transgender activist, communications consultant, and military veteran. She writes “Charlotte’s Web Thoughts,” a blog/newsletter about politics and culture. In 2021, she signed an exclusive one-year deal with Substack to host her blog on their site. She was most recently a political fellow at the Georgetown Institute of Politics and Public Service and the Director of Communications & Strategy at Catholics for Choice.

Prior to these roles, Ms. Clymer was the Press Secretary for Rapid Response at the Human Rights Campaign, the nation’s largest civil rights organization dedicated to advancing lesbian, gay, bisexual, transgender, and queer (LGBTQ) equality. Her day-to-day work involved running the organization’s messaging in response to the White House and federal policy.

Her political and social commentary has been quoted by The New York Times, The Washington Post, The Guardian, and numerous other outlets. Her work has been published in USA Today, The Washington Post, NBC News, Cosmopolitan, Glamour, GQ, The Independent, and other publications. She has also been a guest commentator on MSNBC and CBS Sunday Morning.

Ms. Clymer is finishing up her last term on the Mayor’s Commission for Persons with Disabilities. She also serves on the Board of Directors for the Center for Law and Military Policy, the Military and Veterans Advisory Council for Modern Military Families of America and the Advisory Councils for Running Start and the Lone Star Parity Project, organizations working toward gender parity in elected office.

Ms. Clymer is a member of the Truman National Security Project’s Class of 2019. She was named to Fortune Magazine’s 2020 40 under 40 list in the “Politics & Government” category and the 2019 40 under 40 Queer Women of D.C. by the Mayor’s Office and The Washington Blade.

A Ward 7 resident, Ms. Clymer holds a Bachelor of Arts in Liberal Studies from Georgetown University and is attending American University to earn her Master of Arts in Political Communications.
